The Governor formed the Maryland Occupational Safety and Health (MOSH) Task Force in October 1995. The Task Force charge was to recommend ways to streamline the MOSH Program without compromising worker safety or confidence.

The Task Force studied how MOSH regulations are integrated into the policies and practices of other agencies. It determined that MOSH should offer technical assistance to businesses; ensure that MOSH regulations are consistent with regulatory policies at other government agencies; eliminate duplicate regulations and procedures; and use incentives to encourage voluntary compliance with MOSH regulations. The Task Force submitted a final report to the Governor in November 1995.
